

PCA POST

From the desk of Julie Rivera, K-8 Administrative Assistant

This time of year I always feel a certain joy in my spirit that is hard to explain. As the weather becomes cooler, I get to break out my favorite sweaters and boots, light my fall scented candles and make Thanksgiving preparations with my family. Every Thanksgiving I am like a little kid jumping out of bed to get my cup of coffee and watch the Macy's Day Parade on TV. I begin prepping the side dishes I am going to bring to my mother's house and calling my sisters to make sure we all arrive on time. In that moment that we are surrounded around that beautifully decorated table filled with mouth watering delicious food, I am thankful. I am thankful that the Lord has blessed me with another year of life. That He continues to protect me and my children. That He provides all of my needs and that He is enough. Then I remember that for every time I feel thankful for the many blessings given to me by God, that He wants me to bless others. Everything we have is a gift from God. The gifts we (continues next page...)

have received are not ours alone. God gave them to us with the purpose of serving Him and serving those around us. We all have something to give. When we give to others sometimes it comes in the form of money or food. But sometimes what others need might not come in the physical form and is more spiritual. Sometimes our brothers and sisters need us to pray for them, to give them an extra dose of peace the only our Lord God can provide. Other times we can give them our time; helping someone move, being a friend to someone who is sick or lonely, or even being a peacemaker at school or in the workplace. My hope this season is that each of us finds a gift that our Creator has given us and we are able to find a way to use it to bless someone else. This first quarter of school has been so great. I cannot wait to see what He has in store for us for quarter two. Be blessed!
